34 - In your opinion, what are the three best features of this course?
Response Rate	14/18 (77.78%)

- - Interesting topics - Manageable workload - Good professor
- 1. Professor Calado is really an excellent instructor. In talking with peers from other sections, I heard the difference in how this course was taught, and recommended Dr. Calado as a professor for other classes in the future. 2. The readings felt not only informative, but deeply relevant and applicable to real-world topics and future problems 3. Open-ness of conversations and discussions in class.
- 1. Professor Calado is the best! She's cool, fun, and supportive. 2. This course has a clear agenda each week, sticking to the syllabus while being flexible to meet different circumstances. All rubrics are clearly stated and explained, with no confusion about the assignments ever. 3. We've covered a wide range of topics with well-selected readings that have really opened my eyes, prompting me to consider questions I hadn't thought of before. The class materials are both helpful and engaging.
- - Everyone gets time to share their work and opinions. - The professor was encouraging with discussions and promoted critical thinking. - The readings provided were diverse and introduces you to multiple areas around information technology.
- - the professor - the seminar format - the flexibility and ease of the class (things changed throughout the semester and i appreciated the adaptability, additionally i felt like the assignments were also flexible and let us follow our particular interests)
- The class was very interactive and professor calado has a way with making the class really engaging and fun!
- 1. I really liked the more open and casual discussion board guidelines, it is the first time in a course that I have felt truly excited and engaged to both write and respond to discussion posts. 2. I liked how the final project allowed us to individually pursue a topic we are interested in that may extend outside of the general scope of the course. 3. I found almost all of the readings incredibly helpful in creating a foundation for my studies in information science, each module effectively covered a different aspect of the study.
- Get to the basic ideas and popular topic in the information field generally
- discussion on current topics research technoques encouragement to attent relatable events in the city
- Professor Calado was clear, kind, and inspiring. I really enjoyed the reading. The assignments were relevant and interesting.
- - Course was always interesting and engaging - Professor made class topics highly relevant - Course provided an open environment to communicate
- in class discussion, variety of readings, pacing of the book review process
- 1. In-class discussions / reflections 2. The content of the readings 3. The fieldwork / listening to the events other attended
- 1. Gives a good base to start graduate program 2. Covers broadly 3. Still detailed 35 - In your opinion, what three changes would most improve this course?

Response Rate	14/18 (77.78%)

- - Class activities beyond discussion - Better discussion time management - Diversity of assignments? Less writing
- 1. Sometimes I would have loved an emphasis on encouraging students who were maybe shy-er an opportunity to speak. I noticed there was a set group that would continue to share, and I actively tried to hold off sometimes to allow the space and opportunity for other students. 2. A more world-ly perspective, inclusive of geo-politics. I think a lot of class discussion centered on western ideas and concepts of gender and intersectionality, and approaches to environmental sustainability. Considering the class was ethnically very divided (a lot of american students + a lot of international students), I think it would have been important to open the conversations up (+ I think this would solve #1) 3. More info formats (videos, podcasts, etc, as opposed to strictly readings)
- 1. The course material is a bit too theoretical and academic, which can include more industrial-related content.
- - Some discussions get side-tracked and too lengthy. - A purposeful effort to encourage opposing arguments. - Live commenting on a discussion post in class?
- - sometimes people in class were annoying and it felt like there was a divide or something - sometimes discussions got off topic and i felt frustrated that we were talking about something i didn't care about anymore
- none
- 1. I think that the workload was appropriate for the course, but perhaps there could even be room for an additional project or assignment? Because all of the assignments are individual, perhaps a group project could allow students to familiarize themselves with some of the challenges of information dissemination that they will face in their everyday lives as information professionals? 2. The fieldwork idea is a fun and casual way to get students to engage with larger opportunities around them, but I found the presentation/discussion (or lack there)of said fieldwork in class lacking. 3. Honestly can't think of anything else right now.
- no
- I noticed that during discussion on technology and AI, the class will always end up in a rabbit hole discussing the negative impact of these in everyday life. While I agree that it is important to understand that the negatives of technologies but it is important to acknowledge that lots of positive things are also happening. I wish we have also focused on the potential uses and what are the good things happening around technology. Sometimes I wished the professor would gear the class discussion towards thinking from both perspectives. But i still enjoyed her class.
- Fewer students in the class. I always enjoy slightly smaller class sizes.
- - Course could've had better structure - Provide less readings each week to focus class discussions around - Encouraged discussion between different classmates
- nothing
- 1. Research paper in place of book review for the final assignment 2. No online discussion posts; stick to in-person only 3. N/A
- N/A
