34 - In your opinion, what are the three best features of this course?

Response Rate	5/10 (50%)

- -I love how structured the course is in three man phases / learning objectives -I think it was really helpful to have the class github page to follow along -I enjoy the freedom to form our own final project that aligns with our research, so its something we want to include in our portfolio
- I loved this course. Professor Calado was incredibly knowledgeable and made challenging concepts easy to understand. I am incredibly proud of the skills I have gained this semester. The step-by-step instructions were invaluable, and I will refer back to all my class Jupyter notebooks as references to further develop and enhance this incredible skill set.
- 1. it was great to do some in-class coding along with her, it helped a lot 2. the professor made an effort to not only get to know us but for us to get to know the rest of our classmates which i believed fostered productive conversations 3. the weekly assignments helped me stay on track with the lessons so I felt like I never lost my engagement with the course materials

35 - In your opinion, what three changes would most improve this course?

Response Rate	5/10 (50%)

• -N/A: I think Prof. Calado structured the class really well and this is the first teacher I had that has effectively taught me how to code. She makes complex topics easy to understand no matter what experience / background a student may or may not have with coding.

• I would make the class longer, there is so much to explore and we only just scraped the surface. I would make this a required course for all LIS students. I wish I would have taken this course sooner, of all classes this one has impacted my learning outcomes most.

• 1. sometimes the professor goes too quickly during our in-class coding! though that might just be a me problem. maybe it's worth publishing the in-class jupyter-lab .ipynb files on Canvas so we can review afterwards? 2. I think a lot of the class had the help of AI with their coding due to the different natures of our projects. in previous coding classes, i have had conversations (& even lessons) on generative AI and how to use it ethically to help us with our work instead of it having it do the work for us. i think it's worth addressing that in a semi-instructional manner because AI is inevitable at this point. i do mean both like theoretically but also in practice 3. less about the course and more about the room it was held in but the white board was constantly in the way of the projector.

• I would take every single class she offers. I am considering enrolling after graduation so I can learn more.

• it was my favorite class of the spring semester
